

Holografika wins NVIDIA's „Ones to Watch” award

In front of an audience of 150 VCs, bankers, and members of the GPU ecosystem, NVIDIA this week awarded its coveted “Ones to Watch” awards to the five most promising startups from a field of three dozen companies in this year’s Emerging Companies Summit in San José, the capital of Silicon Valley.

The firms – which each received $80,000 in prizes — were selected by a panel of expert judges on the basis of their commercial viability and their prospects to scale into a substantial business.

In the history of the award, for the first time, a Hungarian company joined the winners: Holografika, with its interactive holographic display technology, wants expand on the US market as well.

Holografika joined an illustrious group of winners in previous years, including Oculus Rift, Splashtop, and Elemental Technologies.

The award-winning technology will be presented at The Tech Museum of Innovation located in the Silicon Valley till mid April, 2014.
